

Travis Speaking Bio

Travis Crim explodes onto the stage with excitement, energy and a genuine love for students. His commitment to the Bible's authority and his ability to lock in the attention of such a wide range of people groups (middle school students to adults) makes him a great choice for any conference, camp or retreat. Marrying Biblical truth with relevance to capture the student culture of today, Travis' communication style blends humor and intensity with practical application for real life.

Travis' initial speaking opportunities came while playing football at The University of Alabama. Between studying and football, he spent his summers working at Christian sports and adventure camps and began speaking regularly at youth groups and retreats around the Southeast.

Having worked relationally with students for over fifteen years, Travis' ministry experience includes stints with The Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Campus Crusade for Christ, campus director at two high schools with Youth for Christ and as student pastor with the local church. He speaks extensively for Outback America, The JH Ranch and other ministries around the country.

Currently Travis lives in Los Angeles, CA with his wife Delaine and their three children; daughters Ginsyn (13), Taegan (9) and their son Syllas (6 months). In addition to acting and writing pursuits, his time in Los Angeles involves outreach to people within the entertainment business and strategically opening doors for Christian students who feel called to this industry.
